

LOUISVILLE JOURNAL

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY
PRENTICE, HENDERSON, & OSBORNE,
Green Street, between Third and Fourth.

GEO. D. PRENTICE, Editor.

UNION STATE TICKET.

FRANCIS M. BRADLEY, of Adm'r.
FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
HAROLD T. JACOB, of Oldham.

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,
JOHN M. HURLIN, of Franklin.

FOR STATE TREASURER,
JAMES H. GARRICK, of Clay.

FOR AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS,
WILLIAM T. SAMUELS, of Hardin.

FOR REGISTER OF LAND OFFICE,
JAMES A. DAWSON, of Hardin.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF PUB. INSTRUCTION,
DANIEL STEVENSON, of Franklin.

STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE,
JAMES CUTTER, of Hardin;
JOSHUA D. COOPER, of Oldham;
GAMALIEL D. COOPER, of Oldham;

RICHARD KNOTT, of Oldham.

Johns Smith, Secretary, to whom all communications should be addressed.

FOR CONGRESS,
ROBERT MALLORY,
of Oldham.

TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1863.

We are very unwilling to complain of the management of affairs at the seat of Government except where the grounds of complaint are so obvious that there can be no possibility of any mistake in regard to them. We do not doubt the strong wish of the President to put down the rebellion as soon as possible, and it must be a far greater pleasure to approve than to censure his acts.

But great and palpable errors of commission and omission should not, we think, be passed over unrebuked and unnoticed. A deplorable error in our opinion, has been the utter negligence of the War Department to adopt a system of getting our armies fully replaced by the tens of thousands of troops lost to the service by the causality of war and disease.

The tens of thousands who periods of retirement from the service by the expiration of their terms of enlistment have of course been foreknown from the first. There seems to have been no provision for the future at all. An authoritative declaration was made at Washington in the spring of last year that we had men in abundance already in the field, enough to subdue the rebellion, and, as a consequence, the work of recruiting, which at that moment was making vigorous progress everywhere, was brought immediately to a close, leaving our armies to dwindle away, as all armies will and must, while at the same time the rebel authorities were reinforcing their hosts in the field, filling up and keeping up all their regiments and brigades and divisions to the highest possible point of numerical strength, and even increasing them by conscription after conscription. Yes, we suddenly relaxed our exertions at the moment when the rebels were redoubling theirs.

To all rational minds, there appeared to be a certainty then that a large supply of men in addition to what we had would be needed for the campaign of last summer, and surely they should have been raised as soon as practicable in order that they might be thoroughly disciplined in anticipation of the requirement of their actual services. No doubt the War Department, in the light of the progress of events, very soon saw the magnitude of the error committed, but there was no haste to repair it, and the summer's campaign was all but fruitless.

Our forces actually stood for months upon the defensive, waiting forever to be brought to their aid.

The lesson was a severe one, and it should not have been lost if the campaign was.

But campaign and lesson shared pretty much the same fate. A call of nine months' men was forced, and, as the exact date of their recruitment from service was known, we all of us must of course have supposed that provision would be made, or at least that every exertion would be put forth to make provision, to prevent their return to their houses from creating a void in our armies at crisis which was universally expected to be an eventful one in the war. The nine months' men are leaving the service now, leaving rapidly by the expiration of their terms, and yet we find that their places are not supplied. Hundreds of newspapers, those friendly and those not friendly to the Administration, have repeatedly and loudly called the attention of the nation and the Government to the rapid approach of the period of the withdrawal of the nine months' men, but their calls have seemed to be unheeded or unanswered.

Now, what is Mr. Harding going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy? If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

These officers and soldiers are opposed to abolitionism, they say emphatically, and Mr. Harding is opposed to it, too, we presume; if they are going to do about it? If we will give them the opportunity, they will let the abolitionists wrap up their political arms in the war, so as to carry their party schemes along with the war, as they are doing now.

They are not going to do about it, we suppose.

Gen. Hooker has lost an army. But we hope that Gen. Meade has found it safe and sound.

Now, what is Mr. Harding going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

These officers and soldiers are opposed to abolitionism, they say emphatically, and Mr. Harding is opposed to it, too, we presume; if they are going to do about it? If we will give them the opportunity, they will let the abolitionists wrap up their political arms in the war, so as to carry their party schemes along with the war, as they are doing now.

They are not going to do about it, we suppose.

Gen. Hooker has lost an army. But we hope that Gen. Meade has found it safe and sound.

Now, what is Mr. Harding going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

These officers and soldiers are opposed to abolitionism, they say emphatically, and Mr. Harding is opposed to it, too, we presume; if they are going to do about it? If we will give them the opportunity, they will let the abolitionists wrap up their political arms in the war, so as to carry their party schemes along with the war, as they are doing now.

They are not going to do about it, we suppose.

Gen. Hooker has lost an army. But we hope that Gen. Meade has found it safe and sound.

Now, what is Mr. Harding going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

These officers and soldiers are opposed to abolitionism, they say emphatically, and Mr. Harding is opposed to it, too, we presume; if they are going to do about it? If we will give them the opportunity, they will let the abolitionists wrap up their political arms in the war, so as to carry their party schemes along with the war, as they are doing now.

They are not going to do about it, we suppose.

Gen. Hooker has lost an army. But we hope that Gen. Meade has found it safe and sound.

Now, what is Mr. Harding going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

These officers and soldiers are opposed to abolitionism, they say emphatically, and Mr. Harding is opposed to it, too, we presume; if they are going to do about it? If we will give them the opportunity, they will let the abolitionists wrap up their political arms in the war, so as to carry their party schemes along with the war, as they are doing now.

They are not going to do about it, we suppose.

Gen. Hooker has lost an army. But we hope that Gen. Meade has found it safe and sound.

Now, what is Mr. Harding going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

These officers and soldiers are opposed to abolitionism, they say emphatically, and Mr. Harding is opposed to it, too, we presume; if they are going to do about it? If we will give them the opportunity, they will let the abolitionists wrap up their political arms in the war, so as to carry their party schemes along with the war, as they are doing now.

They are not going to do about it, we suppose.

Gen. Hooker has lost an army. But we hope that Gen. Meade has found it safe and sound.

Now, what is Mr. Harding going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going to do to dislodge us from this abolition policy?

If nothing else, as good as a politician as Seward could want, is the consciousness of that fact.—Our Democrat.

He is going to do what he did before in conjunction with the whole Northern Democratic delegation in Congress; namely, speak against the abolition policy and vote against it and work against it generally, and, if there are no votes enough to change it, appeal to the people for more votes and for a change of administration. In the mean time, whatever may be the issue as to the policy of the administration, we will maintain the government as a duty of paramount obligation.

Now, what is the Editor of the Democrat going

TUESDAY, JUNE 23, 3 A.M.

Departure of Trains.

Louisville, New Albany, and Cincinnati, 10 A.M.
Louisville, Frankfort, and Lexington, 11 A.M.
Louisville and Nashville, 12 M.

Lexington Train, Louisville, 1 P.M.

Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, & St. Louis Ex., 7:30 A.M.

Cincinnati, Indianapolis, 8:30 A.M.

Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, 2:45 P.M.

Chicago, and the East, 10:30 P.M.

We are authorized to announce the venerable A. Townes as a candidate for the State Senate in the Senatorial District composed of the counties of Hopkins, Webster, and Union. The Canvass of Mr. Townes will be found in another column. We published the several weeks ago, but, as Mr. T. informs us that he did not see it in our columns, we publish it as a special favor to him.

PREPARATIONS TO INVADE KENTUCKY.—The New Albany Ledger of yesterday—what it does the most reliable information that the rebels, to the number of ten or fifteen thousand, are preparing to move into Kentucky about the 1st of July, from Cumberland Gap and Walker's Gap. The invading forces, it is said, will be under the command of Generals Pegram and Humphrey Marshall, and will consist of a heavy proportion of cavalry and artillery. This information comes from so apparently direct and well-informed sources that we are not at liberty to doubt its truth.

The rebels entertain the belief that there are but few Federal troops in Kentucky, and those so scattered as to be unable to offer any very serious opposition to their march upon Louisville, Lexington, and Frankfort. It is well enough for them to believe this, but if they should make the movement indicated they will find themselves most woefully defeated.

THAYER & NOYES'S GREAT CIRCUS.—Louisville is emphatically a circus town, if one is to have an option upon the question paid the establishment of Messrs. Thayer & Noyes, yesterday, which, by the way, embraces a higher order of talents in that peculiar line of amusement than we have ever met in a single combination. Mr. Jas. Robinson, the renowned bare-back rider, has no equal in the arena in either hemisphere, his feats eclipsing all former efforts, and his exhibitions stamping him as the true artist. Indeed he is himself an entire circus. They, the funny man, diserves rare talent, and is no mean your mere jester, but a thorough wit, whose jokes penetrate.

The entertainment last evening was most admirable throughout, but we are by no means satisfied with this first taste of the quality. There will be a grand afternoon performance at two o'clock to-day, and another entertainment at the same hour this evening, to each of which admittions tickets will be for sale at the corner, corner of East and Walnut streets, between the hours of nine and twelve o'clock this morning.

JULY 4TH CELEBRATION.—The Fourth is to be celebrated in this city next Sunday in a becoming and appropriate manner. The following programme has been handed us for publication, and we presume it is the order of the day.

At 10 o'clock A.M. at the Court-house,

National Airplane Band, 100 men, declaration of independence read by J. R. Dupee, Esq.

Star Spangled Banner by the Band.

Music by the Band.

"Rally Round the Flag," by the Soldiers.

Music by the Band.

Col. Mundy will superintend the military, and will have proper salutes fired, as is the usual custom.

SERIOUS AFFRAY.—A difficulty occurred on Third street, between Main and Market streets, on Saturday, which came near being a serious affair. A German, who keeps a saloon in the locality above stated, got into a altercation with a carpenter, when the latter struck him twice with a saw, inflicting a gash on the top of his head. The carpenter's wife, interfering, was also struck and cut on the forehead. Neither, however, were dangerously hurt. The master was afterwards amicably arranged without the authorities taking it in hand.

THORN & RENZ SERVICE.—Dr. Ed. Fuller, assistant surgeon in the rebel service, reported in action to Major Fitch, yesterday, and acknowledged himself a deserter. He professed to be entirely healed of any scission malady he may have had, and desires henceforth and forever to live as a consistent Union man. He was sent to the Military Prison to await the action of the investigating Committee, who will doubtless administer the oath to the Doctor and require bond for his future faithful observance.

THE CUMBERLAND RIVER.—The Nashville Daily states that since the commencement of the late rains the river has risen, altogether, at least point, about thirteen feet. There are now forty-six feet measured at the bridge pier, in the Cumberland from thence to its mouth condition to float all the iron-clads and monitors in creation. Ten or twelve boats sailed on Saturday night, and a brisk removal of navigation is looked for while the tide lasts.

LYONIA OF THE WAR.—The attendance at the Lyonia Temple last night was very good, and over six hundred. We hope each succeeding evening will be a larger audience, however. The painting is indeed a work of art, altogether worthy the praise it has received from those who have seen it. Some of the representations are so real and life-like that they unconsciously call to mind the vivid scenes of poetry in the history of this most horrible of all wars. To-night.

ACCIDENT.—Yesterday evening as a lady and gentleman were on horseback riding, the lady's horse took fright, on Jefferson, below Gay and Clay streets, and she becoming alarmed, threw herself from the animal, bruising herself otherwise hurting her limbs by the fall. She was taken to a house near at hand, where she was carefully cared for. The horse ran down at full speed, but was soon overtaken.

LYONIA SCENE.—The performing monkey failed to Thayer & Noyes's circus got out of his cage yesterday evening, and when a restoration was made to recapture him he was most decided resistance. A great deal of boys attempting to follow him were turned in and frightened, some of them, of their wits. The little animal was quickly recovered and put in his cage, there to remain over his failure to escape.

After Noont.—Colonel Grouet sent North yesterday, from the Military Prison in this city, two hundred and seven rebel prisoners, un-commissioned officers and privates, and 12 citizens. They left on the railroad for Cincinnati, where further disposition will be made of them.

We are requested to state that the negative Convention of the Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Wards will assemble at the Rescue house, Wednesday, July 1st, at eight o'clock, to select a candidate for the Legislative agent of the United States. Same will leave this week for Cincinnati to attend a court-martial, and will carry any letters to friends of Grant's army, if left at the Sanitary Hospital, on Fourth street, near Broadway, by Tuesday noon, July 1st.

Capt. Isaac F. Heater, a soldier of the Twenty-Eighth Kentucky, will address the citizens of Louisville in the east room of the Congressional Hotel, on Fourth street, on Friday noon, July 1st.

A deserter named Louis Hawkins, belonging to the Twenty-Eighth Kentucky, was arrested yesterday and conveyed to barracks No. 1.

JEFFERSON COUNTY COURT.—Hon. Andrew Norton, Judge.—Monday, June 23, 1863.

The following settled accounts having been examined by the court, are approved and ordered to be recorded: J. W. Knight, administrator of Philip Meyers; Alexander Harbinson, administrator of Julia Hicks; Thos. P. White, guardian of Thos. H. Radford; John C. Webb, guardian of Louise A. White; Henry S. Moss, administrator of James Wadell; Jacob L. Smyser, guardian of Lydia & Sallie Smyser; Ann McElroy, administrator of Patrick McElroy; Calley T. Tandy, guardian of James W. and Alonso G. Tandy; John C. Webb, administrator of M. D. Walker; Edw. Fisher, guardian of Anna E. M. Parker; and George C. Clark and Malissa Tucker, J. Young, administrator of Elizabeth Radford; F. Hartman, administrator of Henry Shuble; George Swain, guardian of Julia Maddox; Edward J. Hikes, guardian of Henry C. Bartlett; Wm. Kennedy, guardian of Sarah E. Kennedy; Anthony Martin, administrator of E. T. Sutton, and Joseph Miller, administrator of B. N. Toler.

COMMONWEALTH BY Margaret Jacobs vs Dr. Hook, on a charge of bastardy. Defendant failing to give bond was committed to jail, and the trial set for the 1st of July.

J. C. Buckler, on the 23d, was appointed Post Warden for Louisville.

List of sales of the estate of Ellen D. Y. filed for record.

Laura Higgins, on the 23d, selected C. W. Tiller as her guardian, who gave bond, with J. J. Gilmore as security.

The report of the viewers of the proposed road from Robt. Stover's house, on the Bullitt county line, to the Salt River Turnpike, returned, and a summons was ordered against Robert Kennedy and Louis Moore, property owners.

Reuben L. Post was qualified as notary public for J. F. Johnson.

Averilla Parish was qualified as administrator of L. D. Parish, E. H. Blodard, and the will of Wm. Elliott was proved and ordered to record.

Sam'l Matlock, Esq., had license to solemnize the rites of matrimony.

J. L. Smith had license to peddle within the State goods, wares, and merchandise.

Mrs. Mary Keating was appointed administrator of Jas. Keating, Michael O'Halloran security. Also guardian of Mary Catherine and Anna Keating, same security.

The will of Henry Wallace was proved and admitted to record; Mrs. Hannah Wallace admitted as executrix, without security, as requested by the will.

Maria Colland, administratrix of Louis Colland, in response to the rule, gave George D. Miller.

The settled accounts of Thos. H. Crawford, guardian of William and Eliza M. Dawkins, were filed and continued for exceptions.

Leri Dawkins, Jr., guardian in Missouri, of William and Eliza M. Dawkins, is allowed to withdraw the money in the hands of Thos. H. Crawford.

HERMAN ECKERSTAD was appointed administrator of William Ott. Christian Jonsen security.

Inventories of the estates of James Stroh, Jane Hayes, Elizabeth Tunstall, and John McCready, and list of sales of the estate of James Hayes were filed for record.

SETH COOPER READING.—The attention of the public is called to my Elastic Paint and Roofing Cement, which is considered, by all who have tested it, to be the best and cheapest material of its kind, and is superior to iron, or metal roofs.

The will of Henry Wallace was proved and admitted to record; Mrs. Hannah Wallace admitted as executrix, without security, as requested by the will.

Maria Colland, administratrix of Louis Colland, in response to the rule, gave George D. Miller.

The settled accounts of Thos. H. Crawford, guardian of William and Eliza M. Dawkins, were filed and continued for exceptions.

Leri Dawkins, Jr., guardian in Missouri, of William and Eliza M. Dawkins, is allowed to withdraw the money in the hands of Thos. H. Crawford.

REMEMBER THE DIUKHARO, the child of sorrow and despair. He has died, which is the greatest misfortune that can befall a man. His interesting children, soon their father will send his property, if he has any, and leave them orphans, unless he is reclaims. Then save him, if you can. Try the effect of the DIUKHARO's Hope upon him. It has relieved many a poor man, and has given hope and consolation to degradation. You will find it at Raymond & Tyler's, 75 Fourth street, near Main. It is sent by mail free of postage; price $2.00 per package, or four packages for $5. Jndt2dtkeww

WE are informed that the case of the Rev. Mr. H. C. Thompson, of the First Baptist Church of Louisville, has been filed in the Clerk's office of the Court of Common Pleas of Jefferson County, since the first day of April, 1863.

AMERICAN.—A difficulty occurred on Third street, between Main and Market streets, on Saturday, which came near being a serious affair. A German, who keeps a saloon in the locality above stated, got into a altercation with a carpenter, when the latter struck him twice with a saw, inflicting a gash on the top of his head. The carpenter's wife, interfering, was also struck and cut on the forehead. Neither, however, were dangerously hurt. The master was afterwards amicably arranged without the authorities taking it in hand.

THORN & RENZ SERVICE.—Dr. Ed. Fuller, assistant surgeon in the rebel service, reported in action to Major Fitch, yesterday, and acknowledged himself a deserter. He professed to be entirely healed of any scission malady he may have had, and desires henceforth and forever to live as a consistent Union man. He was sent to the Military Prison to await the action of the investigating Committee, who will doubtless administer the oath to the Doctor and require bond for his future faithful observance.

THE CUMBERLAND RIVER.—The Nashville Daily states that since the commencement of the late rains the river has risen, altogether, at least point, about thirteen feet. There are now forty-six feet measured at the bridge pier, in the Cumberland from thence to its mouth condition to float all the iron-clads and monitors in creation. Ten or twelve boats sailed on Saturday night, and a brisk removal of navigation is looked for while the tide lasts.

LYONIA OF THE WAR.—The attendance at the Lyonia Temple last night was very good, and over six hundred. We hope each succeeding evening will be a larger audience, however. The painting is indeed a work of art, altogether worthy the praise it has received from those who have seen it. Some of the representations are so real and life-like that they unconsciously call to mind the vivid scenes of poetry in the history of this most horrible of all wars. To-night.

ACCIDENT.—Yesterday evening as a lady and gentleman were on horseback riding, the lady's horse took fright, on Jefferson, below Gay and Clay streets, and she becoming alarmed, threw herself from the animal, bruising herself otherwise hurting her limbs by the fall. She was taken to a house near at hand, where she was carefully cared for. The horse ran down at full speed, but was soon overtaken.

LYONIA SCENE.—The performing monkey failed to Thayer & Noyes's circus got out of his cage yesterday evening, and when a restoration was made to recapture him he was most decided resistance. A great deal of boys attempting to follow him were turned in and frightened, some of them, of their wits. The little animal was quickly recovered and put in his cage, there to remain over his failure to escape.

After Noont.—Colonel Grouet sent North yesterday, from the Military Prison in this city, two hundred and seven rebel prisoners, un-commissioned officers and privates, and 12 citizens. They left on the railroad for Cincinnati, where further disposition will be made of them.

Capt. Isaac F. Heater, a soldier of the Twenty-Eighth Kentucky, will address the citizens of Louisville in the east room of the Congressional Hotel, on Fourth street, on Friday noon, July 1st.

A deserter named Louis Hawkins, belonging to the Twenty-Eighth Kentucky, was arrested yesterday and conveyed to barracks No. 1.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST OF THE NAMES OF THE various persons who have exalted him to the rank of General in Ashburton toward the end of May, 1863.

THE following is a LIST

